

Here's the cover letter:

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my strong interest in the SENCO teacher in-charge position at Longburn Adventist College. With 18 years of dedicated experience in Foundation Phase and Special Education, I am excited about the opportunity to contribute my expertise to your inclusive educational environment.

My professional background is specifically aligned with supporting students with diverse learning needs. Throughout my career, I have developed comprehensive strategies for students with autism, Down syndrome, ADHD, and intellectual disabilities. My approach focuses on creating tailored learning experiences that celebrate each student's unique strengths and potential.

As a fully registered New Zealand teacher with a Bachelor of Education in Foundation Phase, I bring not only extensive theoretical knowledge but practical, compassionate classroom skills. My additional Makaton and Sign Language certifications further demonstrate my commitment to inclusive communication and ensuring every student can effectively engage with their learning environment.

My key strengths include curriculum adaptation, behavior modification, and developing individualized learning support plans. I am particularly passionate about creating inclusive classrooms where all students can thrive, regardless of their neurological or developmental differences.

Longburn Adventist College's reputation for supportive, student-centered education resonates deeply with my professional philosophy. I am eager to contribute my skills to your team and help create meaningful learning experiences for your students.

I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how my background and expertise can support your educational goals. Thank you for considering my application.

Warm regards,

Henriette Charlotte Beeslaar
