

Here's the cover letter:

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to express my strong interest in the Inclusive Learning Designer position at Ormiston Junior College, a role that aligns perfectly with my 18+ years of extensive experience in Foundation Phase and Special Educational Needs teaching.

With a Bachelor of Education (Foundation Phase) and full New Zealand Teaching Registration, I bring a comprehensive skill set specializing in inclusive education and learning support. My professional background includes working extensively with students with diverse learning needs, including those with autism, Down syndrome, ADHD, and intellectual disabilities. I am particularly passionate about creating adaptive, supportive learning environments that enable every student to reach their full potential.

My professional qualifications extend beyond traditional teaching credentials. I hold Makaton Certification and Sign Language (Modules 1 & 2), which enable me to communicate effectively with students who have varied communication requirements. My expertise in curriculum adaptation, behavior modification, and early childhood development allows me to design personalized learning strategies that support individual student growth.

Having worked across various educational settings, I understand the critical importance of a holistic, student-centered approach. My approach combines professional expertise with genuine empathy, ensuring that each learner feels valued, understood, and supported in their educational journey.

I am excited about the opportunity to contribute my skills to Ormiston Junior College and support your commitment to inclusive education. My background in special educational needs, combined with my adaptable teaching methodologies, makes me an ideal candidate for this role.

I look forward to discussing how my experience and passion can contribute to your team's success.

Kind regards,
